

History, 318th Infantry for August 1944 (cont'd).

FRANCE with but few contacts with the enemy.

After having suffered the defeat of the ARGENTAN-PALAISE trap, where his losses in both men and equipment were tremendous, the enemy withdrew rather hastily to the East without being able to organize other than perfunctory rear-guard resistance.

The Regiment moved to ARGENTAN 20 August and on the following day from there to MEDAVY where it remained in a rest period until 26 August.

At 0500, 25 August 318th began its move to the Eastern part of FRANCE with a trip of 280 miles the first day, and went into a concentration area at COLLEMIERES, 5 miles Southwest of SENS at 0130, 26 August. Except for one mishap, which turned out not to be fatal, the first day's motor march through FRANCE was uneventful. Civilian populations of the many towns through which we passed turned out almost en masse to cheer us on our way and, in addition to their cheers and smiles of welcome, gifts of fruit, eggs, wine and cognac were heaped on everyone at all points. (Since the drinking of intoxicants while on the march was forbidden, these latter two items, in order not to offend the friendly French people, were always accepted and appropriately disposed of between towns.)

The one mishap encountered, and without mention of which a recording of this particular move would be incomplete, concerned a German half-track that had been salvaged from the ruins of ARGENTAN by the regimental S-2. This vehicle had been taken from ARGENTAN to the rest area near MEDAVY where it had undergone a thorough grooming with the idea of relieving the S-2 section's transportation problems. Whether the grooming had been insufficient or the half-track belatedly envisioned 'der Fuehrer's wrath if caught working for the Americans is not known; at any rate, after sailing along smoothly for a matter of fifty or sixty miles, it suddenly balked, refusing to budge further except for a few yards at a time. The half-track had failed to take into consideration, however, the perseverance of one Lt Henry Minier, Assistant S-2 who, at this juncture, took over the half-track with the avowed purpose of making it transport its burden the remainder of the trip. The vehicle and crew were, of course, left far, far behind. After an absence of two days, during which the Regiment continued its Eastward march, serious doubt began to creep into the minds of those concerned as to the probability of ever seeing again either the half-track or its crew; but, late that same day, they hove into sight - without having suffered a single casualty. How they managed it remains a mystery which only Lt Minier can, and won't explain. During a move on the very next night however, the poor half-track balked again and this time, had to be abandoned.

On the 27th and 28th of August 1944, the 318th crossed the SEINE, AUBE and MARNE RIVERS. The enemy had blown the bridges across all those Rivers ahead of the Regiment and elected to resist our crossing of the AUBE and MARNE RIVERS. Since no resistance was offered at the SEINE, crossing it presented no difficulties, as it proved to be fordable.

Only at the crossing of the AUBE and MARNE RIVERS did the enemy try to fight an organized delaying action, employing, at the AUBE, the 2016th Home-guard Battalion and elements of the 301st GAF Signal School Regiment. Caliber of personnel of these units was very poor, being either too young or too old, and with insufficient training. In the MARNE RIVER and Canal crossing, the opposition was formed by the CT Chalons; elements of the 126th Inf Regt, 48th Inf Div; elements of the 769th Homeguard Inf Bn, and of the 301st Signal School Regt. This rearguard action was the more determined of the two, but was comparatively weak and without adequate support of artillery or other heavy weapons. No tanks at all were seen and, in only one instance were enemy planes sighted. While crossing the AUBE RIVER and Canal, four ME 109s flew over but did no damage, due to quick action of the A5 gunners of the attached 633d AAA Bn.

At 2320, 28 August 318th closed into an area one mile North of LES GRANDE LOGES where it remained until 0915, 30 August. At 0830, 29 August two enemy planes flew over, bombing and strafing friendly installations adjacent to the Regimental CP.

While in this location reconnaissance parties of the Regiment discovered, and captured without resistance, huge quantities of enemy materiel and equipment, including gasoline, large numbers of German guns, food train, etc.

From LES GRANDE LOGES the 318th moved Southeast 42 miles to REVIGNY and from there to BAR LE DUC, where it arrived before midnight 31 August. Between REVIGNY and BAR LE DUC roads were mined and bridges blown - sure signs of a retreat wise and battle weary outfit. There was, however, little or no open resistance, due largely to the FFI having in many towns cleared our path of stragglers and snipers.

While making this trip across FRANCE the Regiment took a total of 86 PWs; in one instance, at REVIGNY, a group of 27 enemy soldiers gave up without resistance. For the entire period 5-31 August 1944 the Regiment took 363 PWs, 9 of which were officers. 52 enemy dead were buried.

During this period 5-31 August 1944 the Regiment suffered a total of 423 casualties, of which 290 were wounded, 100 killed and 33 missing in action.

8. Regimental Commanding Officer for this period was Col HARRY D. MC HUGH.

9. Following is a list of casualties of 318th for the period 5-31 August 1944.
