I. AWARD OF SILVER STAR, POSTHUMOUSLY: By direction of the President, under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, the Silver Star Medal is awarded, posthumously, to the following named personnel:

Werner C. Hoff, 35330120, T Sgt, Co H, 318th Infantry, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 10 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. During the attack on Schmira, Germany, on 10 April 1945, the assaulting rifle companies were opposed by many well emplaced and mutually supporting enemy machine guns, whose fire prevented T Sgt Hoff, a machine gun platoon sergeant, from putting his own machine guns into position to support the attack. Alone and with utter disregard for his own personal safety T Sgt Hoff crawled to a position within thirty yards of an enemy machine gun and then charged the enemy, firing as he ran. Through this gallant action T Sgt Hoff killed one gunner, wounded another, and forced the rest of the crew to flee, thus silencing the enemy weapon. He was mortally wounded during his assault. T Sgt Hoff's courage, aggressiveness, and supreme devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Ohio.

ELI SELIKOFF, 01170186, 2d Lt, 314th Field Artillery Battalion, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 2 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. In the attack on Niedierzweheren, Germany, on 2 April 1945, Lt Selikoff, an artillery forward observer, was attached to an infantry company. When darkness made artillery observation impossible, Lt Selikoff voluntarily led a rifle platoon in an attack after the platoon leader had been wounded. During the course of the attack he reorganized an adjacent platoon whose leader was also a casualty and combining the personnel led two platoons until later that day he was evacuated with wounds from which he later died. The bravery, initiative, courageous leadership, and supreme devotion to duty displayed by Lt Selikoff exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from New York.

II. AWARD OF SILVER STAR (OAK LEAF CLUSTER): By direction of the President, under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, in addition to the Silver Star Medal previously awarded, a bronze Oak Leaf Cluster is awarded the following named personnel:

JAMES S. LUCKETT, O18209, Colonel, 318th Infantry, United States Army. For gallantry in action in Germany on 2 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. On 2 April 1945, during the fluid stages of the fighting near Kassel, Germany, Colonel Lockett, commanding the 318th Infantry Regiment, was returning to his command post over roads not entirely cleared of enemy troops when his vehicle was halted by a ten man enemy patrol. Jumping from his vehicle, Colonel Lockett rushed the enemy demanding that they surrender. Taking advantage of the enemy's surprise at his action he opened fire with his carbine and effectively engaged them in a fire fight despite the rifle and rocket fire directed at him. After a fierce exchange of fire for approximately five minutes the enemy broke and ran leaving two dead and one wounded behind. The bravery, aggressiveness, and courageous devotion to duty displayed by Colonel Lockett exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered United States Military Academy from North Carolina.

III. AWARD OF SILVER STAR: By direction of the President, under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, the Silver Star Medal is awarded the following named personnel:

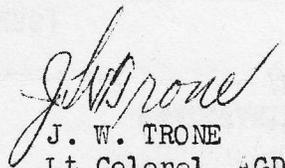

George E. Barton, 35138407, T Sgt (then S Sgt), Co F, 319th Infantry, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 7 February 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. During the severe struggle for a bridgehead across the swollen Our River into the Siegfried Line near Wallendorf, Germany, supplies were moved forward and casualties back in assault boats under the cover of darkness. On 7 February 1945, T Sgt Barton, a platoon guide, volunteered to row the final boatload of casualties across the river during daylight under enemy observation. Despite the enemy mortar and small arms fire which harassed the loading operations, T Sgt Barton calmly completed his work and despite the sniper fire directed at him guided the boat safely to the friendly shore. T Sgt Barton's courage, bravery, and loyal devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Indiana.

IV. AWARD OF SILVER STAR: By direction of the President, under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, the Silver Star Medal is awarded the following named personnel:

Jack Conley, 35538987, Tec 4, 811th Tank Destroyer Battalion, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 2 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. On 2 April 1945, after his tank destroyer had been disabled in a fierce encounter near Hengershausen, Germany, Tec 4 Conley, a tank driver, saw the gunner of a supporting destroyer trying to free himself from his burning vehicle. Disregarding the intense fire from the enemy infantry and anti-tank weapons, Tec 4 Conley ran across an open field to the burning destroyer, removed the injured gunner, and after extinguishing his burning clothes by smothering the flames with his own body he carried the injured man across his back to the safety of a ravine and thence to an aid station thus saving the wounded soldier's life. Tec 4 Conley's courage, resourcefulness, and devotion to his comrade and to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Ohio.

Howard Daniels, Jr, 33596716, Cpl, Co A, 702d Tank Battalion, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 18 February 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. On 18 February 1945, the tank in which Cpl Daniels served as a gunner was hit by enemy anti-tank fire during a fierce engagement near Stockgit, Germany. Even though his tank was immobilized, the driver and bow gunner killed, and he himself wounded, Cpl Daniels remained at his gun and by accurate firing drove the foe from its well camouflaged weapon, permitting the other tanks of his platoon to reach the objective. Cpl Daniels' courage, tenacious bravery, and sincere devotion to duty are in keeping with highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

✓ Stanley G. Gendron, 31448865, Cpl (then Pvt), Co G, 318th Infantry, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 10 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. During the attack on Schmira, Germany, on 10 April 1945, the assaulting rifle companies were opposed by well emplaced and mutually supporting enemy machine guns which temporarily delayed the attack. Cpl Gendron, a rifleman, advanced despite the severe enemy fire stopping only to reload his weapon. While loading his last clip of ammunition he observed four enemy soldiers dug in about thirty yards from him and immediately he charged them, killing two, wounding one, and subduing the other in a hand to hand struggle. Lacking ammunition for his own weapon he remained in the emplacement firing captured weapons. Cpl Gendron's initiative, aggressiveness, and courageous devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Rhode Island.

✓ DONALD R. HANNIBAL, 01331284, 2d Lt, Co A, 318th Infantry, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 11 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. On 11 April 1945, during an assault near Erfurt, Germany, Lt Hannibal, a rifle platoon leader, was leading his platoon over a forward slope of a hill when enemy machine gun fire forced his men to seek cover. Realizing that to remain in such an exposed position would bring disaster, Lt Hannibal remained on his feet and, exhorting his men to follow him, dashed directly at the enemy position. This sudden attack surprised the enemy and made it possible for the platoon to capture two machine guns, fifteen enemy soldiers, and to continue with their assault toward the objective. Lt Hannibal's courage, aggressive leadership, and loyal devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

Ernest Hazelwood, 35693074, Tec 5, MD, 319th Infantry, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in France on 26 November 1944, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. During an attack near Tritteling, France, on 26 November 1944, heavy enemy resistance caused numerous casualties in the assaulting rifle company. Tec 5 Hazelwood, the only aid man attached to the company at the time, gallantly performed his duties caring for over twenty wounded men on the battlefield despite the severe enemy fire falling in the area. An advance rifleman had received a fractured leg and lay but thirty yards from the enemy. Disregarding his own personal safety, Tec 5 Hazelwood crawled to the wounded man and, after pulling him to safety, administered first aid and prepared him for evacuation. Tec 5 Hazelwood's courage and sincere devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Kentucky.

Richard J. James, 35386897, S Sgt, Co C, 317th Infantry, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Luxembourg on 26 December 1944, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. On 26 December 1944, after being held prisoner by the Germans near Kehmen, Luxembourg, S Sgt James, a rifle squad leader, persuaded his captors to surrender and led them to American lines. Back in action on the same day he assumed command of his platoon when the platoon leader was wounded and, leading his men, he continued the attack to the successful capture of the objective. As several of his men were wounded and lay exposed to enemy fire, S Sgt James, with little regard for his own safety, rescued and evacuated them to the aid station. His courage, aggressive leadership, and loyal devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from West Virginia.

On 25 January 1945, S Sgt Latray, a rifle squad leader, assumed command of his platoon in the absence of other commanders and led it in an assault on enemy positions near Drauffel, Luxembourg. In the initial stages of the attack the platoon was subjected to heavy machine gun and small arms fire. Although wounded in the leg by machine gun fire, S Sgt Latray led his men forward in the assault and even though receiving a second wound he would not allow himself to be evacuated until the mission was attained and consolidated. On 12 April 1945, T Sgt Martinez, serving as a platoon leader, learned from prisoners that sixty enemy soldiers were sleeping in a factory building near Erfurt, Germany. Leading his men silently to the factory he ordered them to encircle the building while he crawled toward the entrance. When but twenty yards from the building he rushed the door, killed two sentinels, and, opening the door, hurled a hand grenade into the large factory room, killing and wounding several more. Calling on the remainder to surrender he and the platoon captured fifty enemy soldiers. T Sgt Martinez's courage, leadership, and sincere devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Texas.

Organizing litter squads from prisoners he evacuated thirty one wounded soldiers to safety by means of an assault boat. The bravery, leadership, and courageous devotion to duty displayed by S Sgt McCauley exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Indiana.

For gallantry in action in Germany on 11 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. During the bitter house to house fighting in Schmira, Germany, on 11 April 1945, S Sgt Park, a rifle squad leader, attempted to lead his squad into a building in the business district but was fired on by an enemy machine gun which killed one man. Disregarding the intensity of the enemy fire, S Sgt Park pulled the pins of two grenades and with his squad covering his approach by fire he rushed the building and hurled the grenades through a window, killing three, wounding four, and forcing eight other enemy soldiers to surrender. S Sgt Park's courage, aggressiveness, and sincere devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Michigan.

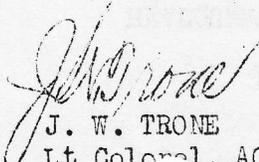

Lazarus L. Turkoff, 32107148, S Sgt, Co A, 702d Tank Battalion, Army of the United States. For gallantry in action in Germany on 10 April 1945, in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States. On 10 April 1945, during an attack against Gispersleben, Germany, the tank which S Sgt Turkoff commanded was hit by an enemy shell which froze the turret in position preventing the gun from being traversed. Undaunted by this handicap, S Sgt Turkoff maneuvered his tank so as to aline his gun on an approaching enemy tank, quickly destroyed it, and routed the supporting enemy infantry. S Sgt Turkoff's courage, initiative, and resourceful devotion to duty aided in the destruction of a large enemy force and is commensurate with the highest ideals of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from New York.

On 22 February 1945, the tank platoon in which Sgt Wujcik served as a gunner attacked in support of infantry troops near Lohr, Germany. On observing a well emplaced German Tiger Royal tank Sgt Wujcik realized that the enemy's advantageous position was impregnable but was vulnerable from the flank. Utterly disregarding the inequalities of size and armor, Sgt Wujcik engaged the Tiger Royal Tank in order that the other tanks of his platoon might strike on the unprotected enemy flank. During the fight Sgt Wujcik was killed. His courage, aggressiveness, and supreme devotion to duty resulted in the flanking of the enemy position and exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Kansas.

On 10 February 1945, Lt Bishop, an artillery forward observer, was attached to an infantry company which had the mission of taking the high ground near Biesdorf, Germany. In the initial assault the attack was temporarily delayed by intense enemy fire. Disregarding his own personal safety, Lt Bishop crawled forward across exposed terrain in an attempt to register artillery fire on the enemy positions, but was caught in a heavy barrage which destroyed his radio. Undaunted, he moved to a flank unit and after borrowing a radio established an observation post between two assaulting rifle companies and throughout the severe fighting furnished such effective fire on the enemy that the objective was successfully captured. Lt Bishop's courage, initiative, and loyal devotion to duty exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

K

During the attack on Greimerath, Germany, on 13 March 1945, a heavy concentration of enemy anti-aircraft, artillery, nebelwerfer, and small arms fire temporarily delayed the advance of two platoons of infantrymen. After one squad had built up a base of fire, Pvt Robichaux, accompanied by two other riflemen, completely disregarding his own personal safety, assaulted the nearest enemy position. By capturing this strongpoint Pvt Robichaux made it possible for the platoon to move forward and continue to its objective. The courage, aggressiveness, and devotion to duty displayed by Pfc Robichaux exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Louisiana.
