35th Tn Bn were called on to support us as we attack the Chateau lesanne. When the second and third platoons with one platoon of tanks moved up the eastern half of the woods, and first platoon with one platoon of tanks moved up the western half of the woods. On reaching the north edge of the woods the first platoon lined up company on its right flank and were unable to make physical contact with the second and third platoons who were not in the designated position. They withdrew along the route of advance and rejoined the remainder of the company at the north edge of woods. "A" Co moved in on our right flank. Men were very tired after fighting most of the night again. Received more replacements late at night. 29 Dec 44 Attacked at OSBO with "A" & "B" companies abreast. We used mortars, assault guns and artillery to screen our right flank. We encountered heavy artillery fire, but 35 tank bn gave us valuable support and with them we overcame the resistance. We continued on against fierce resistance and at about 1100 hours we

We made contact with units of the 101st Airborne Division just ~~1/14~~ south of Bastogne. at 1400. Co "B" moved into position protecting right side of the Bastogne road and overlooking the town of Luttrebach. Morale good as we had accomplished our mission after many days of hard fighting. 30 Dec 44 At 0700, Bn Hq informed us that the unit on our right had been counter-attacked. We were ordered at 1015 to move back to main road and head south to clear the woods north of the chateau. Again, because enemy had infiltrated fairly strong force into these woods. Enemy tanks were encountered and mission was held up until darkness at which time "A" and "B" companies combated the woods meeting some opposition. The second platoon had a fierce fire fight in ~~1/14~~ which we suffered casualties, but the pocket of resistance was wiped out. The company assembled at the chateau and remained in Battalion reserve. Morale poor. Men hate fighting in woods at night. 31 December 44. "B" Co. remained in reserve until 1400 when it was ordered to move.
